19. Additional physical description

This one-part commercial block structure is a non-historic structure.

20. Description of environment and outbuildings.

The building sits on a narrow city lot with asphalt paved drive and parking on all sides. The building faces the north; a parking lot is across the street. A steep decline to the dry fork of Fishing River is on the south. A residential neighborhood is on the west and the main commercial district of Broadway is on the east.

21. History and significance

This commercial building was constructed in the late 70s or early 80s as a drive-thru to accommodate customers of Excelsior Trust Company. The bank was sold to Boatmen's, who moved the drive-thru to another location in town. It then became the offices of Straight for Hollywood, a local cable company. It sat vacant for a period, then was used as a rental home. The most recent commercial use for the building was for a cell phone and dish satellite company.
